Chapter Six: Academic Policies
Academic Integrity
The University of Sharjah comprises a community of students, faculty, administrators, and staff who share a commitment to learning of the highest quality. Since the practice of academic integrity is essential to learning, the university fosters a culture of honesty and respect. Adhering to aspects of integrity is a shared responsibility in any community. Students at the University of Sharjah are expected to honor scholarly values and assume academic, cultural, and social responsibility throughout their learning experience. The free exchange of ideas depends on the participants' trust that they will be given credit for their work. Therefore, everyone in an academic community must be responsible for acknowledging their use of others’ words, research results, and ideas, using the methods accepted by the appropriate academic disciplines. Since intellectual workers' words and ideas constitute a kind of property, plagiarism is like theft. Any violation of academic integrity codes either in or out of the classroom will be handled with the appropriate disciplinary measures by the University administration. In addition, a primary responsibility of an instructor is to certify that a specific academic assignment has been mastered sufficiently to merit college credit. An integral part of this responsibility is to take all possible precautions to ensure that the credit has not been attained by fraud. Instructors at the University of Sharjah should and would rigorously enforce honesty concerning all academic work submitted by his/her students for evaluation.

Classroom Expectations
A professor will normally provide at the beginning of each semester, an outline of the lectures, activities, assignments, and grading system appropriate to the course. The primary responsibility for managing the classroom environment rests with the faculty. Students who engage in any prohibited or unlawful acts may be directed by the faculty member to leave the class. Behavior that a reasonable person would view as substantially or repeatedly interfering with the conduct of a class or conduct that is disruptive, disrespectful or threatening will not be tolerated. In addition to academic measures that may be taken, behavioral infractions may be resolved through the Code of Student Conduct.

Chapter Seven: Students Code of Conduct
7.1 Code of Conduct

At the University, a student is expected to start a markedly new phase in education different from that in high schools. Here the student should behave responsibly towards everyone else. Freedom is a basic principle that is shared by all, and the limits of one’s freedom are the legitimate demands that others impose on that freedom. But one cannot live responsibly without an adequate grasp of morality and ethical behavior. Acting responsibly and living morally are essential prerequisites for a genuine student life. Common experience tells us that student life is never repeated in one’s life; it is unique, a fact that all students should remember. Life in the university is precious and one should take advantage of it to the maximum degree. One should aim at living a well-balanced life at the university, trying to satisfy one’s interests without sacrificing one’s main objectives. It is essential that one abide by the rules of the University and respect everyone else’s property and rights. However, should anyone break the rules of the University and show disrespect to instructors and fellow students, then that person should be prepared to bear the consequences of his/her actions. It is not possible to cite all the possible regulations that students might violate; however, below is a list of some of the University violations that call for discipline. It is the student’s responsibility to read and understand the By-laws regarding the student code of conduct that was duly approved by the University Board of Trustees in its ninth meeting held on 28/3/2002. The UOS policies and procedures part of Student Code of Conduct state: “If a student is caught cheating or about to cheat in an examination or a test, the following penalties are applied to him/her collectively:

a. He/she is failed in the course in which he/she was caught cheating on examination.
b. All the other courses in which the student was registered for during the semester in which he/she was caught cheating, are cancelled.
c. The student is dismissed from the University for one full semester following the semester session in which he/she was caught cheating and the summer is not considered a regular semester for this purpose. No course completed in any university elsewhere will be counted for him/her during the period of dismissal from the University”.

7.2 Academic Violations

1. Breaking the laws of the State and the explicit rules of the University
2. Misbehaving in classrooms, laboratories, libraries and all other places in the University
3. Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the act of stealing someone else’s property and claiming it as one’s own. This property might be a paper, a book, an idea, a computer program, an experiment, an exam paper, an answer, etc. Being free, a person is entitled to act in accordance with one’s beliefs, but it is wrong to plagiarize. Therefore, a person caught plagiarizing or stealing will be subjected to the University’s code of conduct and will be punished accordingly. Students are alerted to this misdemeanor and are encouraged to behave properly and avoid exposing themselves to the consequences of this unethical and illegal behavior.
4. Inappropriate collaboration: The norm is that close collaboration with others on academic work requires acknowledgement of other collaborators. Inappropriate collaboration involves working with others in developing, organizing, or revising a project, which might be a paper, a presentation of a research or design project, or a take-home examination without acknowledging their help.

5. Dishonesty in examinations and submitted work: All academic work and materials submitted for assessment must be the work of the student. Cheating is not limited to copying from others’ work and giving unauthorized assistance, but it also includes the use of devices or procedures for the purpose of achieving false scores on examinations. Students are prohibited from submitting any material prepared by, or purchased from, another person or company.

6. Work completed for one course and submitted for another: Students may not present the same work for more than one course. Students are reminded that when incorporating their own past research in current projects, they need to document such previous work.

7. Deliberate falsification of data: Students must not deliberately falsify data or distort supporting documentation for course work or other academic activity.

8. Interference with other students’ work: Students may not intentionally interfere with the work of others by sabotaging laboratory experiments, research or digital files, giving misleading information or disrupting class work.

9. Copyright violation: Copyright laws govern practices such as making use of printed materials, duplicating computer software, duplicating images, photo duplicating copyrighted material, and reproducing audio-visual work. Such practices must be observed. The code of conduct forbids theft and the unauthorized use of documents.

10. Complicity in academic dishonesty: Complicity in academic dishonesty consists of helping or attempting to help another person commit acts of academic dishonesty or willfully assisting another student in the violation of the academic code of conduct. It also involves pre-meditated and intentional acts, such as doing the work, designing or producing a project, willfully providing answers during an exam, test or quiz for other students; calling a student on a mobile telephone while taking an exam; providing a student with an advanced copy of a test; leaving inappropriate materials behind at the site of an exam or test; altering the outcome results of an exam, and so on.

Note to Students about Plagiarism
Please note that the University Committee of Conduct Control takes all complaints and accusations against students violating the University’s Code of Conduct very seriously from cheating to attempting to cheat, helping or attempting to help someone else cheat, whether directly or indirectly, including the use of mobile phones. It investigates all such complaints and offences and has given stiff penalties to violators of any of the University’s rules of conduct ranging from failing the course and suspension for a whole semester to suspension for the entire year. Our advice to students is to take the University’s rules very seriously and avoid at all costs breaking its rules. Violating the rules does not pay, particularly cheating: in fact it brings hardships and shame to the person caught cheating or even caught preparing to cheat.
