Profile

A qualified British medical doctor with Master's degree in Public Health. Previously psychiatry doctor in Ealing Crisis Assessment and Treatment Team (ECATT) at West London NHS Trust, St Bernard's Hospital. Currently, visiting lecturer at Family & Community Medicine & Behavioural Sciences Department, College of Medicine, University of Sharjah. Good team player, reliable, hardworking, trustworthy, quick learner, organized, flexible, versatile individual who always aims for the best results. Works effectively with medical teams, administration staff, academic staff, students, patients, humanitarian organizations and public health sector. As a personal life coach I work effectively with anxious, stressed out and individuals without aim to help them in clarifying their goals and identifying their obstacles in order to establish a comprehensive approach to internal Self-growth and implementing a healthy balance between work, family life, physical, emotional and social wellbeing. I work well as part of a team and independently. Positive and engaging personality which enables me to communicate and collaborate well, helping to create a good working environment with colleagues.
